SOIL CONSERVATION

The theme of soil conservation—showing eroded soil can be put back into productive use by planting grass—will feature this year's summer fair exhibit of the Saskatchewan department of agriculture.

Ernie McKenzie, audio-visual specialist of the agricultural representatives branch, said the exhibit will visit the two class "A" fairs and seven "B" fairs in the province during six weeks this summer.

Mr. McKenzie said the modernistic exhibit will be divided into three parts, a display area using models and photographs to show how erosion can be corrected, an area where slides can be projected for lectures, and a reception area where the public may rest. In addition, there will be a miniature waterfall to add motion to the exhibit.

Group life insurance for Sask. teachers

Commencing September 1st all full-time teachers in Saskatchewan will be covered by group life insurance Hon. W. S. Lloyd, minister of education, announced.

Under The Teachers' Life Insurance Act, proclaimed last June 1st, all teachers employed on a full-time basis in schools that receive grants from the department of education will be required to have this insurance. The Teachers' Superannuation Commission will administer the group plan.

The provincial government will contribute for the first year of the plan an estimated $80,000 to cover the premium on the first $2,000 of each policy. The average policy will be valued at $6,000.

The Co-Operative Life Insurance Company and the Great West Life Assurance Company will underwrite this group policy.

Mr. Lloyd said that this is probably the first group life insurance plan implemented for all teachers on a province wide basis in Canada. The group insurance plan was based on the recommendations of a committee especially appointed to make a careful study of such a plan.

R. J. Davidson, director of school administration, department of education, was chairman of the committee. Other committee members were: D. Levin, economic advisory and planning board, Regina; A. B. Wiggins and H. E. Carrier, Saskatchewan Teachers' Federation, Saskatoon; L. S. Hicks, Saskatchewan School Trustees Association, Regina; J. P. Midmore, general manager, Co-Operative Life Insurance Company, Regina; D. M. Lyngseth, administrative assistant, treasury department, Regina; G. Todd, secretary, Teachers' Superannuation Commission, Regina, and C. H. Logie, supervisor of school administration, department of education, Regina.

An estimated $40 to $50 millions of insurance will come into force with the implementation of this plan.

CANADA GEESE ROUTES HUNTED

Canada geese that are born in Manitoba's York Factory area fly south in the fall to winter somewhere in the United States. But wildlife experts aren't certain just where in the U.S. these geese do spend the winter.

To try to find an answer to this question a two-man team of biologists from Missouri is making its way northward to spend about 35 days banding geese in the area. The two men will travel along the Nelson river, the Hayes river and eventually end up at Shamattawa.

The biologists will trap and band flightless juvenile geese with regular aluminum leg bands as well as with black plastic neck bands to be used for identifying birds in flight. The men will capture the young birds with long-handled nets and with fish gift nets.

Two earlier trips in northwest Ontario and one in northern Manitoba have shown some of the routes taken by the geese as they fly south. The birds banded on James Bay in Ontario were recovered on the eastern side of the Mississippi Flyway and in southern Illinois. The Manitoba-tagged birds showed up in western Minnesota and South Dakota.

Alberta amendments Traffic Act

Gordon E. Taylor, Minister of Highways, issued a statement drawing the attention of the public to the Amendments to the Vehicles and Highway Traffic Act that were passed at the last session of the Legislature. He emphasized, particularly, the following points:

1. That a Magistrate will on and after June 1st be required to endorse the driver's license of any person convicted of any of the following offences:

A. As was previously done for the following convictions:

- (1) Wrongly going through traffic lights;
- (2) For speeding;
- (3) For racing on a highway or road;
- (4) For careless driving;
- (5) For any moving offence under the Criminal Code of Canada including having the care and control of a motor vehicle while ability is impaired;
- (6) For any city by-law fixing a speed limit.

B. The following offences have been added to the above effective June 1st:

- (1) Passing on a hill or curve or narrow bridge;
- (2) Driving left of centre line;
- (3) Tailgating (following another vehicle too closely);
- (4) Driving in the wrong traffic lane;
- (5) Turning without signalling;
- (6) Failing to give right of way at an intersection as required by law;
- (7) Making a right turn illegally at an intersection;
- (8) Making a left turn illegally at an intersection;
- (9) For going through a red light on a street or road or through a flashing light at a railway crossing;
- (10) For crossing from one side of the street to the other side illegally between intersecting streets;
- (11) For failing to stop before entering a highway or arterial street;
- (12) For passing a school bus that is taking on or letting off boys and girls;
- (13) For leaving the scene of an accident;
- (14) For breaking any municipal speed limit or any moving offence on a municipal road providing a municipal by-law has been passed in connection with same.

The Minister advised that each endorsement on the operator's license will also be reported to the Motor Vehicle Branch and will be placed in the individual file of the person concerned. Persons whose record indicates difficulty in driving within the law will be culled out by the Department and notified by letter, and if improvement does not result the driver's license will be suspended. In addition, the courts will be suspending licenses for infractions as heretofore.

The Minister made reference to a second conviction for the following offences:

- (a) Speeding;
- (b) Driving to the left of the centre line;
- (c) Failing to stop before entering a main highway or arterial street.

A second conviction for any of these offences will mean that the Magistrate will suspend the driver's license immediately and return it to the Department.

All of this is being done in an attempt to reduce the terrific loss of human life that is taking place on our highways and streets.

2. Persons desiring to learn how to drive under the tutelage of a driver who holds a valid driver's license must secure a learner's permit from the driver examiners of the Department of Highways. There will be no charge made for this permit and it will be valid unless otherwise cancelled, up to a maximum period of 24 months.

3. The Minister stated that regulations were being prepared by the Department to deal particularly with the spinners composed of protruding silver spikes that are found on the wheels of a few of our vehicles.

The regulation will also outlaw any decorations that interfere with the vision of the driver in any way.

The above regulations are presently being prepared and persons with vehicles containing the silver spikes on the hubs of their vehicles should have them removed immediately. Prosecutions will take place after the regulation has been properly made.

CLEAN ANGORA SWEATERS

To clean angora sweaters sprinkle corn meal on the sweater, roll up and place inside a polythene bag. Shake vigorously and then brush out the corn meal.

Musty odor

If your suitcases haven't been used for some time and have been stored in a cupboard in the cellar chances are that they'll have a musty odor about them when you open them up before your next trip. To combat this, wash the inside with a solution of vinegar and water in equal parts, and leave the suitcase open in the sun for a while. If the odor persists, spray oil of lavender inside.

Crops heading out

WINDTHORST, Sask. — There has been no precipitation recently in the Grenfell district, but the weather has been very favourable for crops and for haying. The grain is heading out averaging about 18 inches in height.

Although crops look very good at this time a good shower now or within the next few days would be most welcome, says Mr. E. Belles, local elevator agent.

New 'medicare' program

A new comprehensive health plan began July 1 whereby more than 10,000 recipients of provincial social allowances were issued with "medicare cards" entitling them and their families to medical and dental care, optical services, essential prescribed drugs and such other essential care or treatment as medically prescribed.

Hon. George Johnson, minister of health and public welfare, said the co-ordinated plan, two years in the study stage and seven months under active negotiation, involves a co-operative arrangement with the professional associations affected. The program is largely on a prepaid basis.

Those getting "medicare cards" are:

1. All those elderly persons, including the infirm, who since February 1 of this year have qualified for cash allowances in addition to their pensions.
2. Social allowance cases that formerly were recipients of Mothers' Allowance.
3. Children who are wards of the province.
4. Social allowance cases that formerly were in receipt of assistance in unorganized territory.

Calling River Valley

Tucked away in the archives of London's British Museum is a hand-drawn parchment map, signed by David Thompson, showing the course of the Calling River.

This map is now more than 150 years old, yet in little more than an hour's drive from Regina a person can now stand where the famous explorer stood, see the same river, the same valley and the same lakes. Today it is called the Qu'Appelle Valley.

Thompson's is the first known map of the river. On behalf of his employers, the powerful North West Company, he visited the Qu'Appelle in the course of his project to map the entire North-West Territories, and his map shows three company trading posts along the river's course. One of these stood at the eastern end of the lakes.

Thompson may have learned the name of the valley from the local Indians, or from the company traders. He called it Calling River from its Indian name Ca-ta-bu-y-se-pu, the River that Calls.

A lesser known explorer of the same time, Daniel Harmon, also knew of the name. In a diary telling of a journey through the district in 1804 Harmon wrote: "The river is so named by the superstitious natives who imagine that a spirit is constantly going up and down it; they say that they often hear a voice distinctly which resembles the cry of a human being."

The story is told in more romantic form at two historic sites marked by the provincial government. One is on No. 10 highway three miles north-east of Lebert, and the other on Highway 35, three miles south of Fort Qu'Appelle. They tell the Indian Qu'Appelle Valley legend:

"An ancient Indian legend tells how this valley got its name—An Indian brave travelling to his wedding one evening heard his name called out. It was the voice of his sweetheart, but she, he knew, was many miles away in camp. Puzzled, the brave answered 'Who calls?', but only a spirit voice mimicked 'Who calls?'. Troubled, the brave sped homeward, only to learn that his loved one had died. With her last breath she had called his name. Ever since, so the legend goes, the valley has been known as the Qu'Appelle or Calling River Valley."

Also in the valley, and worth the time of any weekend motorist, are other signs of Saskatchewan's historic past.

There is now no sign of the first Hudson's Bay Company trading post at Qu'Appelle, 20 miles south of the lakes, but there is crumbling evidence of where the company's once busy post at Fort Qu'Appelle stood. A small plastered building at the foot of Bay Avenue is all that remains of the post, built in 1864.

But also on Bay Avenue stands a tall stone cairn marking the spot where the Indians of the region signed the fourth, and most important, in a series of 10 Indian treaties.

Here in 1874 the Cree and Saulteaux tribes signed away 75,000 square miles of southern Saskatchewan in return for hunting rights, habitations and small annuities. Father Hugonard, who was there before the signing, described it as a pathetic scene.

The Indians, camped in the valley, held pow-wows for six days before consenting to sign the document which they knew meant the end of their old way of life. One hundred redcoats from Fort Garry, present for the ceremony, provided a display of armed force to speed the decision.

One reason for the Indians' delay was that certain provisions of earlier treaties had not been kept, but the real reason for their final consent was given in an earlier petition to Lieut. Governor Archibald "... Our country is getting ruined of fur-bearing animals. Now we are poor ..."

The cairn on the site was erected in 1915 by the Saskatchewan branch of the Western Art Association, and bears the names of most of those who took part in the signing.

A short distance away, at the river crossing, another historical site marker tells a happier story.

"The old ford on the Qu'Appelle River just south of here," reads the marker, "was once the crossroads of the West. Indians, hunters and traders used it long before the Hudson's Bay Company built Fort Qu'Appelle in 1864 just upstream on the south flat. In 1882 the Canadian Pacific Railway passed 20 miles to the south, settlement of this region followed, and the crossing became a vital link with the north. In the last half of the 19th century the following important trails converged and crossed the river at this point: two from Wood Mountain, one from Fort Walsh, one from Red Deer Forks, one from Elbow of the south Saskatchewan, one from Battleford and Prince Albert, one from Fort Pelly and two from Fort Ellice."

The first mission in the district was in the present Fort Qu'Appelle town site, but little is known of its builder or when it was built. Palliser's map of 1857 shows the mission and early stories tell of its founder, Charles Pratt, a half-breed Indian.

Fort Qu'Appelle's first mission has vanished, but Lebert mission remains. The first church at Lebert was built in 1866, and the famous Father Hugonard came from France to the mission in 1874. His work both at the mission and its industrial school for the education of Indians, soon became known across Canada.

Father Richot, who built the first church, also erected a cross—which still stands as a conspicuous landmark. It is said that it stands on the site from which Archbishop Tache first surveyed the Qu'Appelle lakes and chose the site for the mission.

Residents are urged to take a closer look at their own province, not only at the scenery, but also at these markers of the past, and the parks of the present.

Katepwa Provincial Park, at the southern end of the lakes, consists of 16 acres designed for recreation. Also worth visiting is Valley Centre, in Fort Qu'Appelle, and the fish hatchery.

INEXPENSIVE RECIPE

Here is a tasty and inexpensive recipe for lunch or dinner. Line muffin pans with one-quarter inch thick slices of bologna or salami. Fill the cups with a favorite bread stuffing and bake them in a moderate oven, preheated to three hundred and fifty degrees F. for about 15 minutes. Serve the dish with creamed mushrooms or tomato sauce.

Mrs. Mary Turner, 81, created quite a stir when she returned to England from Canada because "it costs too much to die in Canada" and besides, she didn't like Canadians. She was home only one day and she wanted to return to Canada because "nobody wants me here." But she has no money to come back. Her sons in England would not take her in because of a family quarrel.

C.D. instruction set for teachers

Teachers from every part of Manitoba are to receive instruction in basic survival problems posed by the threat of nuclear attack.

Hon. Stewart E. McLean, minister of education, has announced two hours of instruction, to be given by provincial civil defence authorities, will be included in all departmental teacher training courses to be held this summer.

Mr. McLean said that approximately 1,200 teachers will be enrolled for summer school courses at Winnipeg and Gimli. He noted that it will be the first time that instruction of this type has been planned for teachers in Manitoba.

The civil defence briefing will take the form of two one-hour lectures to be given by Andrew Currie, provincial civil defence co-ordinator, and Albert Bentley, deputy co-ordinator. Lectures will deal with the nature of nuclear explosions, what is being done in planning for national and individual survival, and what can be done.

PORK BURGERS

- 8 hamburger buns
- 1 12-ounce can pork luncheon meat
- 1 tablespoon fat
- 8 thin slices cheese, onion or tomato

Heat buns in oven. Cut pork into eight slices. Melt fat in frying pan and saute slices, allowing them to brown lightly on both sides. Cut heated buns in half and place sauteed slices of pork on lower half. Top each slice with cheese, onion or tomato and arrange on broiler rack. Place top halves of bun on broiler tray, cut side up. Place broiler rack on tray and broil "burgers" until cheese is melted or until onion or tomato slices are lightly browned. Remove from oven and cover with top half of bun.

Pulpit and press

(The Examiner, Peterborough, Ont.)

In a lively sermon which he preached recently the Rev. Gordon C. Smyth of Yonge St. United Church, Toronto, accused the United Church of Canada of harping on a few themes in its criticism of Canadian society. Liquor was a frequent object of condemnation; political corruption was not. Mr. Smyth also said that his church often ignored crusades on moral questions which were instituted by the press; the campaign against government corruption was a case in point.

We are glad to hear that a kind word has been spoken for the press from a pulpit; though not unknown, such a thing is infrequent enough to be a cause of comment. As a general thing, we of the newspaper world have the impression that the clergy do not think too highly of us—and of course they may be right. But there is one criticism they bring against us which seems to fit into the context of what Mr. Smyth has said; they say that we concentrate on scarce news, horror news and sensational news, to the neglect of news which is good, cheerful and encouraging to our readers.

There is much truth in what they say. If we graded news strictly according to its true merit, we would publish the news of every birth in big type on the front page, and print obituaries of self-seekers, deadbeats and crooks (even when they were prominent and respected citizens) in agate type on our back pages. We would list accidents briefly under some such general heading as "Acts of God." We would print vastly more scientific and cultural news than we do. And as well as drama and music critics, we would employ a staff of sermon critics, to attend the churches on Sundays and assess the theological worth and oratorical skill of the persons.

But if we did any of these things, we would not produce the kind of newspaper which our subscribers have shown they want. Indeed, we sometimes are made conscious that we are too demanding in what we give them now.

If we of the newspaper world harp on the negative side of affairs and rate an axe-murder high above the miracle of birth and the continuance of life on this earth, what can be said about the churches? Well, Mr. Smyth has said it about his own church. He says it concentrates on a small repertoire of sins, which nobody ever defends, like drunkenness and gambling, but that it never goes after respectable and much-applauded sins like feathering your nest at the public expense, or worshipping Mammon publicly and noisily, or muddling the distinction between a Greeter and a Christian.

Mr. Smyth sounds like the kind of parson who is often in trouble—as parsons who are worth their salt so often are. We thank him for his kind words about the press, and wish him well.

A progressive step in Church Work

(The Sun, Grenfell, Sask.)

We note that the Lutheran, Anglican and United Churches in Grenfell have joined with other churches in this part of the province to form a group called the Qu'Appelle Sector. The object of this sector is to improve the work of the respective churches, and thus Christ's work in general.

Aside from the benefits expected within the individual congregations concerned, the spirit of harmony and the co-operation evidenced between the various denominations, is a happy, and worthwhile by-product of the Sector work.

Upon inquiry we discover that Sector is aimed to bring people into the work of the church, to find people who are on the side lines and awaken their interest, to look for leaders, and to arouse people's sense of stewardship in the work of our Lord. The work of the Sector is done voluntarily, the only costs involved being those of administration through travelling of counsellors and material for explaining the work.

Sector ultimately involves a very large percentage of each congregation in the various committees, and familiarizes everyone with the needs of their church.

We feel this is one of the most worthwhile and potentially successful pieces of Church work which has been introduced in some time, and wish the Sector planners in this, and other communities, every success.

CELEBRATES 110th BIRTHDAY—Spencer Church fondles his cat and anticipates a real good time when he celebrates his 110th birthday. He celebrated on Sunday "when everybody was able to come." —Renfrew Advance photo.

Spencer Church 110 years old

Spencer Church is 110 years old.

When a representative of this newspaper arrived to talk to him about plans for his birthday, Mr. Church was sitting on the back steps of his home reading The Advance—and he was reading it without glasses.

Mr. Church spent a good winter. He didn't go out much. He spent most of his time reading and watching TV. His mind appears to be even brighter than it was a year ago and physically his condition is just as good.

He's stopped chopping wood but he is still spry and alert, despite his 110 years. He sleeps well and eats well and he doesn't go to bed with the birds nor does he get up with them either.

He sits and watches TV till 10 and 11 o'clock at night if the programs please him. He doesn't get up till 9 o'clock in the morning and sometimes it is noon. Then he has another nap in the afternoon.

Mr. Church is believed to be the oldest person in Canada. One woman was two years older but she died a couple of years ago. He says he is the oldest man in Bagot township and no person disputes it. In three years he will reach the Canadian age record. The greatest age any person has reached in Canada is 113, according to official records was Pierre Joubert, a French Canadian boot-maker who died in Quebec in 1814 at the age of 113. That age is believed to be a British Commonwealth record. Mr. Church doesn't have to live too long to equal it or to beat it.

Mr. Church likes to recall the past. He looked at the modern ranch type home on the banks of the Madawaska river where he resides with his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Augusta Church, and remarked, "We didn't have houses like that in the old days." When he was a lad in the Calabogie area the homes were "shanties" or log houses. There were no stoves in those days. The fire was built on earthen floor and the smoke was carried away by a flue of wood.

Then he pointed to a mounted deer head hanging on the porch and remarked, "I've shot lots of them." He shot them in the water too. He used to delight in rowing a boat up behind a deer in the water and right up on its back. The deer couldn't see him approaching from behind but as soon as the boat started scraping along its backbone there was a great commotion in the water. Mr. Church didn't care if the boat was upset. He could swim like a fish. And that was necessary in those days especially for the men who ran logs down the river.

Mr. Church hasn't hunted for the last eight years but the last time he was out on the deer runs he got three of them. He got his first deer when he was 10 years

MAKE EVERYDAY VITAMIN D DAY

Children need Vitamin D all the time they are growing! Why, you may ask? The reason is this—Vitamin D along with the calcium found chiefly in milk are needed by the body to form strong, straight bones, good teeth and well-developed bodies.

Vitamin D is needed to prevent rickets. A deficiency of Vitamin rays also have difficulty penetrating tanned skins. Therefore it is safer to give children Vitamin D in the summer.

The need for Vitamin D is ever present in growth. Children need it everyday until at least 16 years of age. There is no evidence that Vitamin D has any physiological value in adults. In fact, Vitamin D should not be taken by adults, except when prescribed by a doctor.

You may wonder why Vitamin D is necessary for pregnant and nursing mothers. The expectant mother passes on minerals to her unborn baby, who does the building job himself. The nursing mother gives some Vitamin D to her baby by way of breast milk. However, a breast fed baby, due to his rapid growth needs a supplement of Vitamin D starting at about three weeks of age. Choose the Vitamin D preparation which best suits your need for the least money. If it is difficult to figure out from the label the amount needed, ask your doctor, medical health officer, nurse or druggist to help you.

Make every day Vitamin D day for your children.

D is characterized by one or more of the following symptoms; stunted growth, soft bones, poorly developed and defective teeth, small dental arch, malformed chest, bow-legs, knock-knees, protruding forehead, swollen joints and digestive disturbances.

Foods, as ordinarily eaten do not contain enough Vitamin D for growth. Therefore, Vitamin D extracts must be taken in order to meet the needs of growth. Vitamin D is extracted from fish livers (i.e., cod liver oil), or it may be made chemically. It may be taken in drops or spoonfuls, depending on the kind of preparation, or in tablet or capsule form. Vitamin D often called the sunshine Vitamin, may be obtained in limited quantities from sunlight and certain foods as salmon, sardines and irradiated evaporated milk. But, we cannot depend on these foods to supply enough Vitamin D daily.

You may wonder if sunlight is a dependable source of Vitamin D. Under some circumstances it could be, however, it has been found that smoke, fog, clouds and dust prevent the ultra violet rays of the sun from reaching the skin where they form Vitamin D. The old. He doesn't know how many deer he shot, but he got "lots of them."

The small four-foot four Spencer has spent a rugged life. He started to work in the bush with his father when he was 10 years old. He was working in the mornings as soon as he was able to see and kept at it as long as he could see.

There were no roads in those days, just trails through the bush and no horses or cattle. Mr. Church's father bought the first horse to be taken into the district. He used to drive oxen in the bush.

In the days of big timber, Mr. Church was an expert on the river when the drive was on. The logs were hewn into square timber. They were attached together in cribs 12 feet wide and floated down the Madawaska and the Ottawa to Hull, then shipped to England. When deep water was reached, 24 cribs were put together to form rafts. Mr. Church rode rafts to Hull twice. They were steered with 24-foot oars. A cookery and cabins for sleeping were built on top of the rafts.

Mr. Church was one of the 16 children of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Church who settled in Calabogie after coming from the United States. He and a sister, Mrs. Ross Burton of North Bay are the only ones left.

He was not married until he was 38 years old. He had no time to think of such things—until the right girl came along and then there was nothing he could do about it. The couple had 11 children and six are still living. They are Mrs. Harry Wilson of Wedwood, Mrs. Orrie Smith of Cobalt, Mrs. Sadie McGonagal of Perth, Mrs. Julius Ostroskie of Springtown, and two sons, Gordon and Duncan of Calabogie. One son Murray, was stricken at Mr. Church's birthday party last year and died a couple of days later.

The family is not just sure how many descendants Mr. Church has. Last year there were 163 and there are at least four more than that.

Mr. Church is perhaps the most photographed man in the area. He regrets that he hasn't a dollar for every picture that has been taken of him. But he said he would be glad to welcome the press again next year.

The birthday was celebrated with a dinner for the immediate family and was followed by a reception in the Calabogie Community hall where Mr. Church greeted his friends. Last year the number was 400.

Sask. egg quality improvement must Saskatchewan poultrymen could lose some of their local markets to Manitoba and Alberta producers if the quality of their eggs doesn't improve. D. H. Conrad, poultry representative, department of agriculture, told delegates attending the annual provincial poultry conference at Valley Centre, Fort Qu'Appelle recently. Mr. Conrad pointed out that while Saskatchewan produces about nine percent of Canada's eggs, only about three percent of grade "A" eggs come from this province.

In an effort to improve the quality of marketed eggs the department recently launched a quality egg program, designed to raise quality standards by emphasizing approved poultry husbandry methods, and by improving grading and handling facilities.

To qualify for the Saskatchewan quality egg program producers must have a minimum of 200 birds for commercial egg production.

Colorful new cranberry ideas for the lunchbox

"What's in your lunchbox?" If you can imagine yourself a school teacher you'll see wide eyes peering expectantly under precious lunchbox covers as the school clock strikes twelve. Your little boy or girl is probably asking his best friend just for comparison. Maybe there's a bit of swapping. Put yourself in your youngster's place for a minute this noon and we'll wager there'll be a new lunchbox pattern for tomorrow.

Little girls like foods that are pretty. But they need foods that are nutritious at this very important meal. Little boys like foods that are filling and these lunches should be just as carefully planned.

A sturdy serviceable lunchbox has a vacuum bottle for cold milk or hot soups. All types of plastic containers for salads and desserts are available. As for the menu... be sure there's meat, eggs, cheese or fish; a salad with vegetable and fruit; bread, and of course, milk.

Ever think of adding colorful perky red cranberry sauce to the lunchbox menu? Try using it in a salad, sandwich or dessert...

Use cranberry sauce in the salad of this lunchbox menu...

For the salad: All kinds of salad combinations are possible when there's an assortment of canned fruits on the shelves. Here's one with the tang of cranberry sauce, the mellow flavor of peaches.

CRANBERRY PEACHY SALAD

For each salad place a crisp lettuce leaf in a plastic container. Top with a cling peach half and two tablespoons of canned whole cranberry sauce. Keep chilled until time to pack lunchbox. Good with canned pear halves, too.

For the sandwich: This Cheesey Dream is extra good. Spread whole wheat bread lightly with ketchup, top with a slice of cheese, then several slices of hard cooked egg. Tuck in a sprig of watercress.

For the beverage: Add a different flavor to milk everyday. A Molasses-Mixup tops off this menu. Just shake together enough milk to fill the vacuum bottle and 1 tablespoon of molasses. Chill thoroughly.

For the dessert: Peanut butter cookies or the new slice and bake chocolate chip cookies are easy to pack. Add a few miniature marshmallows wrapped in waxed paper for an extra.

For the surprise: Just for a special once in awhile tuck in a surprise. A tiny nosegay of artificial flowers for a girl to pin on her dress. For the boys perhaps a new pen and pencil set.

Here's a menu with the colorful cranberry sauce poking up in the dessert...

Weed control pays dividends

The above statement is substantiated by the fact that approximately 16,000,000 acres were treated with herbicides in 1959 and indications point to continued increases in their use in 1960.

Proper and timely application of chemical weed sprays improves grain yields, thus reducing the per bushel cost of producing grain. Wherever possible, chemical weed control should be combined with other recommended farm practices such as the use of sound, well cleaned seed and a carefully planned tillage program for most satisfactory results.

Benefits of Early Treatment:

1. Weeds are young and easy to kill.
2. Weeds are eliminated before they can cause extensive crop damage.
3. Recommended rates of chemical application will provide more effective weed control.
4. Yield increases are most pronounced when crops are treated early, e.g. expanded 3-leaf stage to the early flag-leaf (shot-blade) stage for cereal grains and from the time the plants reach a height of 2' up to just before the pre-bud stage of growth for flax.

Select Chemical Herbicides Carefully

2,4-D is recommended for use on wheat, barley and rye applied from the 3-leaf stage to the early flag-leaf stage. If earlier treatment is necessary MCPA should be used.

MCPA is recommended for use on oats, flax and peas because these crops are more sensitive to 2,4-D than to MCPA. Where it is necessary to use 2,4-D on the above crops (Russian thistle is a serious weed menace) some crop damage should be expected, and Amines rather than Ester formulations should be used.

Observe Chemical Rules of Safety
Weed killing chemicals such as 2,4-D, 2,4,5-T and MCPA are non-poisonous and non-flammable, but can cause damage to crops other than grain, to gardens, and to farmstead and field shelterbelts which may be located in adjoining areas. Amines, Sodium Salt and Low Volatile Ester formulations do not give off fumes and are safer to use than regular Esters under such circumstances.

It is preferable to keep pressures at a minimum (approximately 30 lbs. per square inch) and spraying or dusting on windy days should be avoided.

EASY TO APPLY

Latex paints, named after the milk-like juice of the rubber tree, are actually a development of the synthetic rubber program of World War II. They are easy to apply, have no odor, dry quickly and are fully washable after 30 days.

SALAD TOURS

Here's a new way to streamline summer—make a salad sandwich instead of salad and sandwich. For outdoor meals, supper on the lawn and similar occasions, the advantages of combining two courses are obvious. It provides an easy-to-make, flavorful menu that's easily transported to a table spread out-of-doors to catch whatever breeze happens to be available.

This recipe for Egg Salad Buns uses hamburger buns as a base instead of bread. The filling is a hearty combination of bacon, eggs, celery, green onions and lettuce. For a picnic away from home a chilled bowlful of the filling can be packed into the picnic basket along with the buns and assorted relishes, such as sweet pickle slices, dill pickle fingers and olives, etc. Everyone can then assemble their own bun-sandwich.

EGG-SALAD BUNS

Yield — 8 bun sandwiches
6 eggs
6 slices side bacon
1/2 cup finely-chopped celery
1 tablespoon finely-chopped green onion or chives
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper
Salad dressing
8 hamburger buns
Soft butter or margarine
Crisp lettuce

Hard cook eggs, then chill in cold water. Cut bacon into bits and fry until crisp; drain from fat. Shell eggs and chop finely, using a pastry blender or 2 knives, scissors fashion. Add bacon chips, celery and onion or chives. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and toss lightly with 2 forks. Moisten with salad dressing. Split the hamburger buns and toast them, first on crusty sides, then on cut sides; spread lightly with soft butter or margarine. Put the buns together with a generous filling of egg mixture and torn pieces of lettuce.

Musty odor

If your suitcases haven't been used for some time and have been stored in a cupboard in the cellar chances are that they'll have a musty odor about them when you open them up before your next trip. To combat this, wash the inside with a solution of vinegar and water in equal parts, and leave the suitcase open in the sun for a while. If the odor persists, spray oil of lavender inside.

Don't Neglect Slipping FALSE TEETH

Do false teeth drop, slip or wobble when you talk, eat, laugh or sneeze? Don't be annoyed and embarrassed by such handicaps. FASTEETH, an alkaline (non-acid) powder to sprinkle on your plates, keeps false teeth more firmly set. Gives confident feeling of security and added comfort. No gummy, goosy, pasty taste or feeling. Get FASTEETH today at any drug counter.

A week ago Mr. and Mrs. Gimbel, Glenda and her husband visited a few days in Peace River with Courtney Gimbel. Courtney is quite a gardener with all kinds of vegetables, many acres of tomatoes and cucumbers, etc. Courtney lives along the Peace River and does all of his irrigating from the river. He lives 12 miles from the town of Peace River.

Rev. H. Campbell, head of Theology Dept. at Canadian Union College was guest speaker Aug. 20 at the S.D.A. church. He is also visiting prospective Canadian Union College students.

Ivan Schaber, 41, died in the St. John, New Brunswick General hospital. He was born in this district and got his early education in the Level Land school. He attended Canadian Union College and later finished at Walla Walla College in Washington. Ivan will be missed by many, being a good student and teacher. He taught in B.C. and Sask. and now in New Brunswick for four years. He leaves to mourn his wife Ruth; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Emanuel Schaber; eight brothers, Roy, Elmer, Clifford, Wilbert, all of Carbon; Art of Ottawa; Walter of Salem, Oregon; Lyle of Brush Prairie, Wash.; Ralph of Calgary; three sisters, Mrs. Albert Grabo of Beiseker; Mrs. Evelyn Brock of Lansing, Michigan and Irma of Carbon.

Funeral service was held in the S.D.A. church of Barnesville, Nova Scotia with Pastor L. L. Bock officiating. Burial followed in the church cemetery. Our deepest sympathy goes out to the Schaber family.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Williams were visiting with their parents Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Tetz. They came back on their second furlough from Seoul, Korea. Mr. Williams was the guest speaker at the S.D.A. church July 30. In the evening they showed slides of their work and the living habits of the Korean people. They are doing a wonderful work in that mission station.

Visitors at the S.D.A. Church Aug. 20 were Mother Leiske of Lacombe, Dr. Michael and Marge Haluschak of Edmonton, Orval and Irene Patzer, Hanna; Sam A. Suelzle of Vancouver visiting his mother and sister at Sam Leiskes. All enjoyed his songs at church. Dr. and Mrs. Albert Will and his sister Mrs. Esther Triebwasser and children, all of Elgin, Oregon were visiting with their sister Mrs. Fred Grabo. Last Sunday the whole family was at Lacombe where their parents Mr. and Mrs. Gus Will celebrated their Golden Wedding Anniversary. A week ago another sister Mr. and Mrs. Davis of Walla Walla Wash. were guests in the district, formerly Anna Will.

Other weekend visitors were Mr. and Mrs. Wagner of Salem, Oregon.

Gail McAfee of Edmonton was also visiting in the district.
